DESCRIPTION

This is a 6-hour workshop open to occupational therapists, physical therapists, and other clinicians who work with children or adults. The workshop offers techniques and tools that help people achieve calm and self-regulation. This course offers the Neurobiology of survival and reactivity. You will learn a cadre of strategies and tools that can be implemented immediately to expand your treatment program by decreasing stress responses. This course will broaden your understanding of the role of social-emotional health on your treatment of developmental motor coordination, inattention, oppositional defiance, learning disabilities, and behavior. Your clients will develop a sense of safety so that you and your clients can be positive, self-regulated, grounded, confident, and secure.

The Thrive Method takes a multi-pronged approach toward working with children who have difficulty regulating their emotional state and behavior. This course offers proven strategies and tools that can be implemented immediately via telehealth or in person, for children, teens, and adults.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

At the end of this seminar the participant will be able to:

- Interpret the neurobiology of learning and behavior.
- Detail and demonstrate assessment skills of using performance assessment, reported performance and clinical observations.
- Relate the glands effected and the consequences of the hormone secretions that result in result of social-emotional challenges.
- Detail and demonstrate a repertoire of sensory processing and motor activities to improve occupational performance and participation for daily activities and tasks.
- Organize the different responses to the activities and how to treat each response to customize your client's treatment plan.
- Correlate functional goals related to the social-emotional well-being in the home and classroom.

PRESENTER'S BIO

Miriam (Manela) Frankel, OTR/L, is the founder of Childrenbloom.com. ChildrenBloom.com provides toolkits for parents and educators to deal with struggling children. It is unique in its combination of both hands-on techniques and demonstrations of physical exercises, to be used at home as remediation, alongside guidance and emotional support for parents so that they have tools, along with their own intuition, to deal with different behaviors and challenges. She is the author of the groundbreaking parenting book 'The Parent-Child Dance': A Guide to Help You Understand and Shape Your Child's Behavior. Miriam's occupational therapy practice, The Thrive Group, has locations in New York and New Jersey. The practice specializes in helping children, adults, their families, and educators with behavioral, academic, social, emotional, and physical challenges. She conducts interactive educational workshops and presentations worldwide including universities, therapist conferences, as well as numerous educational and professional venues. She is the former legislative co-chair of the New Jersey Occupational Therapy Association and New Jersey representative for the representative assembly of the American Occupational Therapy Association. In 2013, she won the CBS Radio Women's achievement award and has been awarded Top Doctor's in New Jersey award for four consecutive years. Miriam is a certified Level-4 Tomatis consultant.
